

Before the Throne; bringing issues on our heart

In being this fount, how is it that we shall go before the Throne and spill our heart's burdens and desires – in Christ's Name and for God's Glory? Petitioning the Lord for issues of those we intercede for must come from the heart; and to come from the heart, it must be truly in and on our own heart. How? Through sufficient effort, in Christian compassion, to understand, love, and embrace the person or issue we ask intercession for. A cursory mention of an issue before God is surely inferior to a heartfelt, heart-invested plea to the Father from one of His children. Love the person in need; hate the manifestation of evil; know the issues at hand, and make them your own concern; carry these issues of thanks and need on your own heart; and always, seek and ask God's intercession in the hope and assurance of Him being Glorified by His answer. This last point demands our glad acceptance and satisfaction in however He may choose to deal with the issue.

General stuff.....

Prayer is an essential to our faith, and thus our walk with the Lord. Our commune with Him in His presence fills our spirit and carries us along in our obedience throughout the day. Time to right ourselves and continually align our heart with God is imperative, as well as edifying.
